

This map illustrates the proposed Angeles National Recreation Area, which would encompass approximately 621,860 acres in Southern California. The area is bounded by a thick blue line and includes several designated wilderness areas: Magic Mountain, Pleasant View Ridge, San Gabriel, Sheep Mountain, and Cucamonga. The map also shows the Angeles National Forest and the San Bernardino National Forest. Surrounding cities and towns include Palmdale, Acton, Santa Clarita, Santa Monica, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Glendale, Altadena, Sierra Madre, Monrovia, Azusa, Glendora, San Dimas, La Verne, Claremont, Upland, Pomona, Diamond Bar, Rowland Heights, Industry, La Habra Heights, Santa Fe Springs, Downey, Montebello, Pico Rivera, El Monte, S. El Monte, Arcadia, Irwindale, Baldwin Park, and Anaheim. Major roads are marked with numbers in circles: 5, 101, 210, 15, and 10. The Pacific Ocean is visible to the west. A legend in the bottom right corner defines the symbols used: a thick blue line for the Proposed Boundary, a green outline for the Santa Monica Mountains NRA, a dashed line for USFS Administrative Boundaries, dark green for Wilderness, and various shades of green for Existing Protected Lands (Federal, State, Local). Major Roads are shown as grey lines. A scale bar at the bottom left indicates distances from 0 to 10 miles, and a north arrow is located next to it. Sources cited at the bottom right include the California Protected Area Database 2014a, US Forest Service (Administrative Boundaries), and the date March 14, 2014.
